

RUSSIAN ARMIES DEFEATED ON BOTH WINGS OF ITS LONG LINE

stopped at No. 42 Broadway to take on Secretary Rice, of Thaw's staff, who had ready two bags of clothing for the home journey.

With the aid of the police the surging, good-natured mob was parted with difficulty and the parade moved back and to the foot of Cortlandt Street, where Sheriff Griffenhagen, who has been his guardian nearly ever since Thaw was brought from New Hampshire, six months ago, bade him goodby. Sheriff Griffenhagen explained that Justice Hendrick had ordered him to stay with Thaw and protect him while in the jurisdiction of this county from "annoyance of any sort whatever."

"Prot." Levy had a car waiting for Thaw on the Jersey City side of the river and there was a quick run to Newark. Getting down at the Ambassador Busch Cafe, at No. 203 Market Street, Thaw spoke briefly on the writ of habeas corpus and his constitutional rights and the iniquity of abducting them "in times of peace." He said he would have a written statement after lunch and asked the reporters to be on the lookout for it. This also dealt with habeas corpus, martial law and the Attorney General. WANTS TO GET THAW IN NORMAL CONDITION.

Levy said he was anxious to get Thaw to a place where he could receive massage treatment and rest which would restore him to a normal physical and nervous condition before he started west.

The decision of Justice Hendrick was delivered after an extended explanation of his reasons for making it, at 11.30 o'clock. It was an hour and a half before Thaw left the building. The delay was due to the argument over the appeal, the formalities of signing the bail bond and an extension of the memory of Justice John J. Delany.

At the moment of his first victory in nine years of fighting for liberty Thaw was as calm as any man in the court room. The voices of the lawyers and of Justice Hendrick quivered and shook a little during the proceedings.

Thaw heard the opinion which made him a free man with only a sheet of a smile. It was not until the court room doors were opened, half an hour later, after a battle between Deputy Attorney General Bromberger and John B. Stanchfield and former Justice Morgan J. O'Brien of Thaw's counsel regarding his release on bail that Thaw let his abounding joy loose.

He reached out with both hands for the small forest of arms which were extended to him from the crowd, which instantly hummed him in. He threw back his head and laughed in outright happiness. He shook his head every time anybody asked him a question about his future movements and shouted boyishly: "I don't know. Wait until we get this bond signed and get out of here. What difference does it make. I'm out at last."

SIGNS AUTOGRAPHS FOR WOMEN IN COURTROOM.

Thaw was escorted out of the noisy crowd in the courtroom into Justice Hendrick's robing room. He signed the bail bond there. When he was through a score of young women, many of them friends of the Justice, who had been present at the court proceedings, clustered around him. He signed twenty autographs with the pen which he used on the bond.

When he had a chance to talk he argued with all comers that the appeal as Justice O'Brien had said, was unconstitutional and would be rejected to be so. He walked down the steps of the court house and through the corridors between jammed rows of humanity, who cheered him from the top to the bottom of the building.

LOOKED WORRIED AS HE ENTERED COURT.

When he entered the court to learn the outcome of his nine years of legal battles for liberty, Thaw looked tired and worried. His walk was a little hunched. His face was gray and heavily lined and was shiny with perspiration. His features twitched and he frowned as though he regretted his inability to seem as unbothered as he has throughout the hearing.

He sat between former Justice

Morgan J. O'Brien and Abel I. Smith, of his counsel, but had little to say to either while waiting for Justice Hendrick to take his place on the bench.

The Court was called to order at eight minutes after eleven. Though it had been announced that the general public would not be admitted, the room was then nearly filled. There was a group of twenty or more women in brightly colored summer attire in the space back of the bench and at the side of the jury box. Many of them nodded and waved their hands at Thaw, but though staring straight in their direction he did not seem to see them.

KEEP COURT LOCKED AFTER BAIL IS FIXED.

Immediately after Justice Hendrick ordered Thaw admitted to bail, Mr. O'Brien, Mr. Bromberger, Mr. Stanchfield and Justice Hendrick entered on the robing of the late Justice John J. Delany. The courtroom doors were kept locked. There had not been a stir inside the courtroom when the decision was announced except as one of the doors closed softly behind a messenger who was let out to give the "flash" to the newspapers.

There was cheering and handclapping in all the crowded corridors and stairways immediately after that, but it was not audible in the courtroom. Thaw shook hands with his attorneys warmly, but quietly, during the eulogies. When the doors were at last opened and Justice Hendrick stepped down, Thaw's whole bearing changed electrically. The lines disappeared from his face, he smiled broadly into every face turned toward him and both his hands were kept busy shaking those held out to him.

Thaw's new gray striped suit was soon pulled out of shape, his dark blue necktie was pulled to the side of his neck and his collar wilted. Justice Hendrick delivered his opinion without reference to any notes, leaning forward on his elbows and speaking rather louder and more bravely than is usual with him. He said in substance:

JUSTICE SEVERELY CRITICIZES ACTION OF ALIENISTS.

"I have reached a decision in this matter. It is based on my own judgment, fortified by the advice of a very intelligent jury. I want to state here of the evidence. You have had here persons who are not alienists, some of them coming from the State of New Hampshire, who were permitted to give testimony as to the sanity of Thaw. They have examined witnesses, they have explored for evidence, they have acted as advisers to counsel, and then they have gone upon the stand and have given solemn testimony which we are asked to accept as free and impartial testimony for our guidance."

"It is a state of affairs which the medical profession itself would do well to move to remedy. If the medical profession does not—though I have no doubt it will—then I hope the Legislature will take action to regulate such actions either by having commission of impartial experts or in some other manner."

STATE FILES IMMEDIATE NOTICE OF AN APPEAL.

"I have adopted the report of the jury. It is the opinion of the Court that Harry K. Thaw is sane. Justice Hendrick turned and directed a kindly smile at Thaw. Mr. Bromberger rose and presented a notice of appeal.

"We ask that the rotator (Thaw) be admitted to bail," said Mr. Stanchfield, who had been sitting in the jury box.

"If the Court sees fit," said Mr. Bromberger, "the order which appears here was prepared in case the Court should sustain the writ, but the State does not consent to the admission to bail of this man."

Mr. Stanchfield said he had been in conference with Deputy Attorney General Cook and Becker, and both had agreed as to bail. Mr. Bromberger said sharply that he had been in communication with Albany and must wait what was said.

"With all respect," he said, "we differ with Your Honor and the jury. We believe this man is a menace to the community, and that it is dangerous to allow him to run at large. Unwelcome as he is as a guest of this State, we believe he ought to be retained here pending this appeal."

Mr. Stanchfield, obviously incensed, moved out to the front of the bench. "We do not acquiesce," he said, "in the doctrine that this notice of an appeal acts as a stay. It is incredible that a man found sane, in pursuance of the verdict of a jury, should be deprived of his liberty by the filing of an appeal notice. Both appeal will never be prosecuted. The Attorney General never intended to prosecute it. If it is pressed I shall have some very serious remarks to make as to the motives of the man behind it."

RESENTS QUESTIONING OF PROSECUTOR'S MOTIVES.

Justice O'Brien rose to say that in his opinion the contention that a notice of appeal could act as a stay without judgment without bail was outrageous. "To grant that," he said, "would be to grant the privilege to the Attorney General to suspend the writ of habeas corpus, contrary to the Constitution of the State and of the United States."

Mr. Bromberger said he resented any questioning of the motives of the Attorney General's office, and produced authorities, which were brushed aside by Justice Hendrick with the remark:

"I shall admit Thaw to bail. Bail is fixed at $25,000."

A bail bond, with the amount blank, had been prepared and was at once filed out by officers of a surety company with which Thaw, according to one of the company's officers, had already deposited more than $25,000 worth of gilt-edge securities.

Further proceedings, except handshaking with Thaw by those who sat nearest to him, were suspended until after the rendering of the verdict to the late Justice John J. Delany by Messrs. O'Brien, Bromberger, Stanchfield and the Court were concluded.

Before court opened, Thaw talked quietly in the corridor with a number of acquaintances. He said he intended to go straight to Pittsburgh to join his mother, who started yesterday in full confidence he would be set free. He was asked as to his feelings toward his wife, Evelyn Nesbit.

"As for Evelyn Thaw, I have no interest in her—nor have I any interest in her child," he said. "She changed completely in character and manner of life between my first and second trials. She is a different person from the woman I married. In fact the change is so great that she might as well be another individual."

Thaw's friends say that his first action after he is free to transact business as a sane person will be to make a new will cutting off Evelyn Thaw from any share in his fortune. They say, in addition, that Thaw will soon bring an action for divorce.

FILED APPEAL NOTICE TO FORCE BIG BOND; CAN'T BE EXTRADITED

ALBANY, N. Y., July 16.—Attorney General Woodbury will reserve decision as to whether he will appeal from the Thaw verdict until he has examined the court record in the proceeding before Justice Hendrick.

This information was made public today in a statement from the Attorney General's office, explaining that the formal notice of appeal was taken to prevent Thaw leaving the jurisdiction of the court until he had given bond. The statement follows: "As soon as Mr. Justice Hendrick announced his decision today discharging Thaw, Attorney General Woodbury took an appeal to the Appellate Division of the First Department. This appeal has the effect of suspending the order discharging Thaw until the hearing and determination of the appeal, and had not Thaw been advised to bail he would be kept in custody."

"Mr. Justice Hendrick has, however, admitted him to bail. The bail bond has been furnished and approved by the court. After the appeal had not been taken promptly to prevent Thaw from leaving the jurisdiction of the court, and there is no process by which he could have been brought back."

"Attorney General Woodbury will now personally examine the record of the proceedings for the purpose of determining if such error has been committed by the Court as would warrant the argument of the appeal before the Appellate Division."

MOTHER IS HAPPY OVER THAW'S RELEASE

PITTSBURGH, Pa., July 16.—"The result is as I expected it to be," said Mrs. Mary Copely Thaw at her Beechwood Avenue home. She arrived here early today to prepare for her son's homecoming. "I'm a bit disappointed, however, that it is not all over."

Then her face lighted up, and she said: "But I hardly think there is very much we can do."

FRENCH RETAKE HILL 285, DEFEATING CROWN PRINCE

Paris War Office Officially Announces Success in the Argonne.

BATTLE IN THE VOSGES.

Germans Said to Have Been Driven Back, Leaving Dead and Dying on Field.

PARIS, July 16.—Hill No. 285, in the Forest of the Argonne, which was stormed by the Germans under the Crown Prince early this week, has been recaptured by the French forces, according to the official statement given out this afternoon by the French War Department.

The War Office also reported that the Germans are hurling heavy forces into an attack on the French positions in the Vosges. Along a front of nearly two miles, extending from Champenoux to Vesouze, the Teutons made simultaneous charges upon the French trenches yesterday, but were driven back after hard fighting with heavy losses.

Whether the new German activity in this region indicates the beginning of the German offensive in Alsace-Lorraine forecasted by French military experts several days ago is not yet known. Official despatches indicate that the Germans have been heavily reinforced, but did not state whether the new reinforcements came from the Galician battlefields. The attacks launched yesterday were against positions previously occupied by the French.

The Germans first shelled the French positions, particularly near Leintrey, with showers of high power explosives. Then they rushed the trenches, advancing double-quick shoulder to shoulder, in a compact mass that offered a great target to the French guns. In their retreat they left behind several hundred dead and dying.

North of Arras a German attack was repulsed yesterday afternoon, the official communique stated. The following is the text of the War Office despatch: "In the region to the north of Arras, the enemy attempted to rally from his trenches to the south of the Chateau de Carleul and was immediately checked by our infantry and artillery fire."

"In the Argonne our curtains of fire prevented every tentative attack of the enemy. "Between the Meuse and the Moselle the night witnessed activity but without action on the part of the infantry. There was bombardment from a front extending three kilometers to the Ravine of Sonvaux, bomb throwing in the Forest of Alilly and cannonading to the north of Flirey."

"In Lorraine the Germans attacked on a front extending three kilometers to the Ravine of Sonvaux, bomb throwing in the Forest of Alilly and cannonading to the north of Flirey. "In the region southeast of the forest of Parroy, assaulting troops which had reached our wire entanglements were dispersed by our fire and lost prisoners in our hands. The losses of the enemy appeared considerable."

TURKS DRIVEN BACK 200 YARDS MORE IN GALLIPOLI BATTLE

Desperate Fighting for Short Stretches of Territory Near Achi Baba.

LONDON, July 16.—A further advance by the allies in the Dardanelles is reported by the Athens correspondent of the Express. The British are said to have dislodged the Turks from four lines of trenches near Derka Tepa, while the French have gained an important success in the Kithria region.

LONDON, July 16.—Sir Ian Hamilton's expeditionary force at the Dardanelles continues to close steadily in around the great Turkish stronghold on the hill of Achi Baba (in the center of the lower peninsula, just east of Kithria), another advance having practically the entire front, reported by the British official Press Bureau and the French War Office from Paris, having taken place on July 15 and 16.

The French official report, received from Paris, says:

"In the Dardanelles on July 15-16 the expeditionary corps of the Orient and the right wing of the British troops attacked the Turkish positions and carried several lines of works. A first line was occupied along the whole of the front on the morning of July 15, and a second toward the close of the day through a magnificent charge of the Zouaves and the Foreign Legion."

"The following day fresh progress was made at several points and the Lower Valley of Keressa was occupied. We captured more than 200 prisoners and our allies 150. The losses of the enemy, surprised frequently in massed formation by the artillery, were extremely heavy."

"The warships co-operated efficaciously, shelling Achi Baba and the Asiatic coast."

Berlin Denies French Claims of Success in the Argonne Region.

REPORTS 7,000 TAKEN.

Admits Loss of a Trench in the Sector South of Souchez Cemetery.

BERLIN, July 16 (via London).—The German official statement issued by the War Office today says: "During one of the enemy's attacks in the neighborhood of Souchez we lost a trench in the section south of the cemetery on July 16."

"Repeated attempts made by the French to take away from us the positions we had captured in the Argonne failed. The positions are firmly in our hands."

"French attacks delivered yesterday and the day before to the west of the Argonne forest failed. The North German landwehr inflicted large and sanguinary losses on the enemy in bitter hand-to-hand fighting. We captured 462 prisoners."

"Since June 20 our troops have fought continuously in the Argonne and to the west of that forest, with the exception of short interruptions. In addition to the gain in territory and booty in materials a total of 116 officers and 7,000 French prisoners have been reached up to the present."

"On our front, which joins the Argonne to the east, artillery battles are in progress. Attacks made by the enemy in this region were repulsed without difficulty."

"In the neighborhood of Leintrey, to the east of Lunville, there have been outposts engagements. "Our aviators dropped bombs on enemy troops in Gerardmer (in the Vosges Mountains, eighteen miles south of Saint Die)."

The Crown Prince's recent victory in the western Argonne was celebrated at a banquet in which the Crown Prince and his generals drank to each other's health, according to despatches from the front to-day.

Military experts say the German victory in this region was of special importance because it emphasized the gradual closing off of the Verdun French armies from their western connections. The fact that the French lost a large quantity of war material when their positions were captured in the final assault indicated that they attached great importance to the captured redoubts.

VON HINDENBURG AND MACKENSEN FIGHT FOR WARSAW

Brilliant Successes Won Over the Russians at Both Ends of Line.

LONDON, July 16.—Field Marshal von Hindenburg has again come into the limelight as a result of his brilliant coup to the north of Warsaw, which brings the Germans within the zone which they reached last winter when the Polish capital was saved by a Russian counter offensive.

Petrograd claims that much severe frontal fighting must be done before Warsaw can be surrounded by the forces of Field Marshals von Hindenburg and von Mackensen.

In Southeastern Galicia the Austro-German armies are making their way across the Dniester River under a heavy Russian artillery fire which has prevented the troops crossing in several places.

Fighting again is becoming lively in the most distant portion of the Russian front—in the Caucasus—where both the Turks and the Russians claim successes.

"The enemy, having received reinforcements in the region of Riga and Shavil, began on the 14th an advance coup extending on Gouingene and the sector Shirdan-Popelyari. Our cavalry and advance guards are holding the enemy at the passages of the Windau and the rivers and at other favorable positions."

"On the right bank of the Pissa and on both banks of the Skwa the situation is unchanged. The enemy is in several trenches, but did not repeat his attacks because of heavy losses suffered in the fighting."

"Between the Vistula and the Bug, on the 14th, the enemy made numerous separate attacks, all of which were repulsed by our fire."

"On the evening of the 15th Austrian troops took the offensive in the sector Neviska-Oksa. The enemy attacked our bridge heads on the right bank of the river in the region of Ivanjilja, Kosenik and Slinkov. Our artillery on the 14th bombarded the enemy successfully at many points during the crossing of the river and compelled him at some places to abandon the attempt to cross. The fighting continues."

"The German forces have crossed the Windau River to the north of Koltynani, in Courland," said the official report.

WAR NEWS IN BRIEF.

Fighting in the Argonne region in France has turned in favor of the French, according to the Paris War Office, which claims the recapture of Hill No. 285 from the army of the German Crown Prince.

The hill was taken early this week in the German move on Verdun, which drove the French back three-fifths of a mile along a front of nearly two miles, the German reports declared, and resulted in the capture of more than 2,500 French soldiers and several guns.

The German campaign in the Russian Baltic provinces seems to be gaining force, Berlin to-day announcing that the German troops have crossed the Windau north of Koltynani in their eastward march.

Further advances by the Teutonic forces are reported in Poland north of Warsaw, the German official statement recording progress south-east of Kolno and south of Przasnysz, where their troops are reported "fighting victoriously." The latest Russian statement declares German attacks in this region were repulsed.

On the Austro-Italian front Rome reports success in forcing the Austrians out of positions in the mountain regions where fighting is in progress.

Further advances by the entente allies on the Gallipoli Peninsula are reported by way of Athens.

The German submarine U-51, noted for its long voyage from German waters to Constantinople, is reported sunk in the Black Sea by Russian warships.

WELSH STRIKERS ARE STILL DEFIANT; KEEP MINES SHUT

Peace Conferences on To-Day and Lloyd-George May Intervene If They Fail.

LONDON, July 16.—The South Wales miners to-day are showing an unbroken front in conformity with the resolution passed at the meeting of the delegates at Cardiff yesterday, when it was decided to reject the recommendation of the executive committee that the men return to work.

Should the Runciman conferences to-day not turn out favorably David Lloyd George, the Minister of Munitions, possibly will visit the perturbed district. His influence with the men in previous disputes has been effective. In the mean time perfect peace reigns in the coal fields.
